FOREWORD

The Project title; ‘Terrorism knows NO Borders’ aptly illustrates the broader point that we are seeking to make through our involvement in support for victims and survivors, namely that in the context of ‘The Northern Ireland Troubles,’ terrorism and criminal violence was not curtailed to Northern Ireland alone but rather that individuals, families and communities experienced its’ impacts across the United Kingdom, Republic of Ireland and well beyond these islands.

This Memorial Quilt Project seeks to provide some understanding of the sacrifices paid by individuals, families and communities beyond Northern Ireland, those who have been victimised by Republican or Loyalist terrorism.

SEFF’s ethos means that we are not purely concerned with victims/survivors who live within south Fermanagh, the broader County or Northern Ireland. Rather our concern and support knows NO Borders, our organisation exists and will continue to exist to represent and stand up for the rights of innocent victims and survivors of terrorism and ‘other Troubles related criminal violence’ irrespective of their postcode/geographical location.

Governments across these islands must finally put in place support services and interventions which address the needs of those whom in many cases have been overlooked and marginalised and they must acknowledge the sacrifices that have been made by victims, not only at the point they were victimised but also since then through Governmental policies which have actively worked against their interests.

In recent months revisions have taken place within the quilt. Our team of Quilting volunteers came together once more to create a further batch of quilt patches which have been dedicated at our 7th Annual Service of Remembrance held in Templecarne Church of Ireland, Pettigo, County Donegal.

The new patches remember members of the security forces from both the United Kingdom and Republic of Ireland and also many civilians, some of whom held office within the structures of State and others who were everyday citizens of either Nation who were simply going about their everyday business but were caught up in acts of terrorism.

I want to extend the organisation's deepest appreciation to Sonia Johnston and her team of volunteers who have once again demonstrated their capabilities in producing such beautiful and also unique patches of tribute to those who were viewed special, remarkable people by those who loved and knew them best.

This Memorial Quilt is a piece of living history and dignified remembrance. It will be a key talking point for visitors who come to SEFF. The Quilt will also be displayed in other buildings and venues across Northern Ireland, Great Britain and The Republic of Ireland in the times that lie ahead.

To the following ladies who acted as volunteers for the Project we say a special thank you: Pam Morrison, Betty Beacom, Joan Bullock, Harriett Kirkpatrick, Edna Simpson, Eileen Stutt, Maureen North, Valerie Brown, Pearl Abbott and Marie O'Reilly.

We also wish to recognise Mabel Black and Avril Johnston for their support in producing a number of the patches and we also record the organisation's thanks to SEFF's Projects Officer Joy Aiken who was the main staff conduit for the Project and to Kenny Donaldson, SEFF's Director of Services for his oversight.

Finally I wish to recognise our funders, The Victims and Survivors Service who are responsible for administering victims/survivor monies on behalf of the Northern Ireland Executive Office. Their investment in this Project is very much acknowledged and appreciated.

Yours,
Eric Brown
(Chairman)

The Three Scottish Soldiers JOHN & JOSEPH McCRAIG and DOUGALD McCAUGHEY

10th March 1971

Three Scottish soldiers were murdered in Belfast on 10th March 1971, when the Provisional Irish Republican Army shot dead three unarmed soldiers of the 1st Battalion, Royal Highland Fusiliers.

Dougald McCaughey, 23, was murdered along with brothers John and Joseph McCraig, 17 and 18 respectively, all three men were from Scotland.

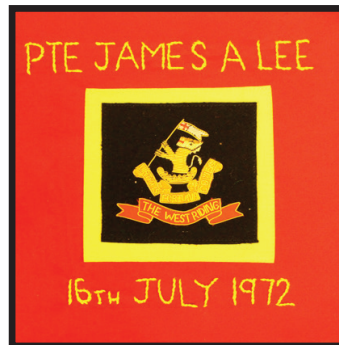

They were murdered when off-duty and in civilian clothes, having been lured from a city-centre bar in Belfast, driven to a remote location and shot whilst relieving themselves by the roadside. Three Regular Army soldiers had been murdered prior to this event; all had been on duty and murdered during rioting.

A memorial to the three soldiers was dedicated in 2010 in North Belfast near to where the three men were assassinated. The Royal British Legion Oldpark / Cavehill branch raised money through the sale of badges to erect the memorial.

The murders sent shockwaves across the community and following the incident, the Army raised the minimum age needed to serve in Northern Ireland to 18 years.

Family, former colleagues and friends of the three Scottish soldiers continue to fight for justice for three young men, much loved by many.

Private JAMES ALFRED LEE

Service Number: 24015423 (Duke of Wellington's Regiment)

23rd October 1946 - 16th July 1972

James Alfred Lee was only 25 years old when he went to serve in Northern Ireland; he never made it home to Leeds. James served on the 1st Battalion of the Duke of Wellington's Regiment and had done so for 6 years up until his murder on 16th July 1972.

His wife, Susan was only 19 at the time and was 6 months pregnant with their first child. James had been due to return home on leave in two weeks' time. James's daughter Donna-Marie was born three months after his death. Private Lee was buried in the same church the couple were married in only nine months earlier.

Susan was awarded the Elizabeth Cross on behalf of her husband who was murdered when an IRA booby trap bomb exploded under their armoured vehicle while returning from patrol in Crossmaglen in South Armagh.

Gunner ERROL LEROY GORDON

Service Number: 24115910 (Royal Regiment of Artillery)

22nd April 1950 - 7th August 1972

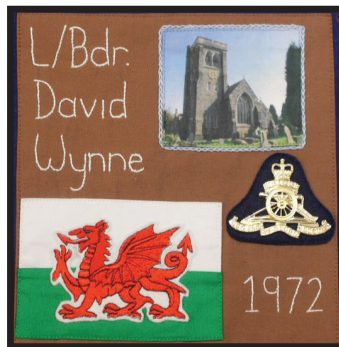

Gunner Errol Gordon was 22 years old and was married with a wife and young son when he was murdered via a Provisional IRA landmine ambush on the army Land Rover he was travelling in near Lisnaskea, County Fermanagh.

He died alongside his comrade, Lance Bombardier David Wynne on 7th August 1972.

Errol was originally from Kingston, Jamaica and had an impressive and strong stature. Amongst other hobbies and interests he enjoyed playing football.

Local people recall having a kick-about with Errol and remember him fondly as someone who had a warm personality.

Lance Bombardier DAVID PATRICK WYNNE

Service Number: 24155248 (Royal Regiment of Artillery)

10th June 1951 - 7th August 1972

David Patrick Wynne, 21 years old, single and a soldier with the Royal Artillery holding the rank of Lance Bombardier was murdered alongside colleague, Errol Leroy Gordon. David was married with one child and was a soldier with the Royal Artillery holding the rank of Gunner.

Early on Monday, 7th August 1972 both soldiers were killed in a Provisional IRA ambush at Lisnaskea, when a landmine exploded under their Land Rover. The landmine was detonated as they were travelling in one of two vehicles on patrol at Forfey about three miles from the village. Several hundred pounds of explosives were in a stone built culvert under the road when it exploded, the blast blew a ten foot wide crater in the road. Both soldiers were murdered instantly. They were members of the 9/7 Battery of the Royal Artillery's 4th Medium Regiment. Lance Bombardier Wynne was from Caerphilly, South Wales.

David Patrick Wynne was born on the 10th June 1951 to parents Douglas and Anne Wynne, they also had three other children Michael, Terry and Jeanette who all now live in Perth, Western Australia. David was a happy young boy with a great sense of humour, who liked riding his bike and playing tennis. He was very personable and was well liked by everyone he came in contact with. After leaving school David's father financed a butcher shop in Abertridwr, a small Welsh village and set David up in business, but David was a soft hearted individual, he used to let some of the older customers have meat on the basis they would pay later, but of course they never did and his father decided to sell the shop before they went bankrupt! David then joined the army in 1970, he did two tours in Northern Ireland, he didn't have to complete the second tour but he was romantically involved with a local girl, so decided to go back.

After his death the Wynne family received some lovely, caring sympathy letters from Northern Irish people that knew him, telling the family what a great young man he was and offering their condolences.

David will never be forgotten and will always be loved and fondly remembered by his family and everyone who was blessed to know him. David's death was a huge burden for his mother and it fractured the family, she never ever came to terms with the death of her beloved son. When she died her ashes and a plaque were placed on David's grave in Caerphilly, as this always was her wish. They now lay in peace together.

Trooper JOHN GIBBONS

Service Number: 24174231 (17th/21st Lancers)

21st May 1951 - 5th May 1973

John joined the British Armed Forces in 1969, he was so proud of his Scottish ancestry and the fact that he served his country. He was killed by a booby trap bomb while searching the area of an earlier bomb that had sadly killed another soldier. The booby trap was placed in a stone wall giving John and another member of the Regiment no chance as they returned to their vehicle.

John was married to Linda, they lived in Germany and had a son who was only 3 month's old at the time of John's murder. In fact John left for his tour of duty when his son was only 2 weeks old.

The Scottish flag was chosen for John's patch because he was so proud of his origins but also the poppy as a poignant reminder that John died while serving his Country.

Corporal BRYAN CRIDDLE BEM

Service Number: 23547930 (Royal Army Veterinary Corps)

19th May 1939 - 22nd July 1973

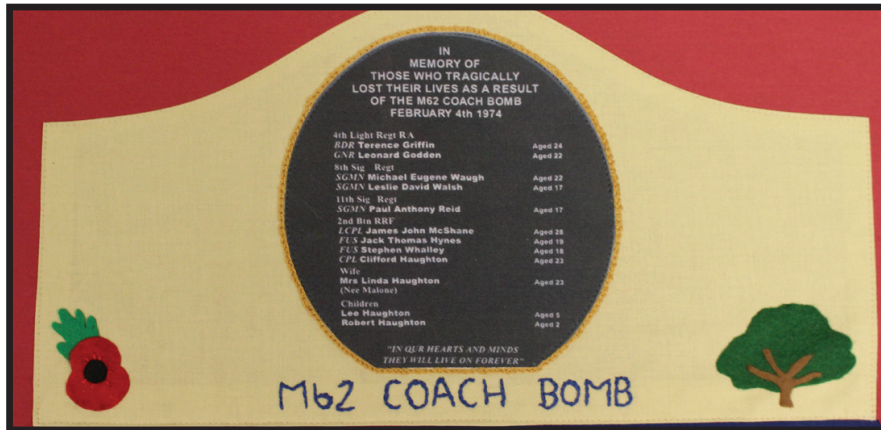

Bryan died on 22nd July 1973, 4 days after he was injured in a Provisional IRA bomb explosion at Clogher, County Tyrone. Bryan was married with 3 children, a daughter called Sarah who had just turned 3 and twin sons of 9 months old, Gary and Glenn.

Bryan joined the army in the pioneer corps as a dog handler, transferred to the Royal Army Veterinary corps and trained as a dog trainer. He served in Malaya training American dog handlers in jungle warfare. He had little time to have hobbies but enjoyed socialising. His family, job and his dog Jason were the main loves of his life.

Bryan was injured while examining a necklace of milk churns positioned in a field near Clogher (close to the border) While he was checking them the bomb was set off by remote control from across the border.

On Bryan's patch is a German shepherd's head representing his partner Jason who he formed such a close and necessary bond with. The Red Paw represents the Army Dog Unit Northern Ireland, which he and several other Royal Army Veterinary Corps set up.

M62 COACH BOMB

The M62 coach bombing happened on 4th February 1974 on the M62 motorway in northern England, when a PIRA bomb exploded in a coach carrying off-duty British Armed Forces personnel and their family members. Twelve people (nine soldiers, three civilians) were killed by the bomb, (11 at the scene with a twelfth dying four days later) which consisted of 25 pounds (11 kg) of high explosive hidden in a luggage locker on the coach.

An entire family were murdered in the blast - the Haughtons, whose entire family, consisting of Clifford, his wife Linda and his sons Lee (5) and Robert (2). Numerous others suffered severe injuries, including a six-year-old boy, who was badly burned.

The driver of the coach, Roland Handley, was injured by flying glass, but was hailed as a hero for bringing the coach safely to a halt.

The entrance hall of the westbound section of the Hartshead Moor service area was used as a first aid station for those wounded in the blast. A memorial to those who were killed was later created there following a campaign by relatives of the dead; a larger memorial was later erected, set some yards away from the entrance hall. The site, situated behind four flag poles, includes an English oak tree, a memorial stone, a memorial plaque and a raised marble tablet inscribed with the names of those who died.

A memorial plaque engraved with the names of the casualties was also unveiled in Oldham in 2010.

THE HAUGHTON FAMILY

Corporal Clifford Haughton
Linda Haughton
Lee Haughton (5 years old)
Robert Haughton (2 years old)

Service Number: 24139309 (Royal Regiment of Fusilliers)

4th February 1974

Cliff Haughton was married to Linda and together they had two boys, Lee (5 years old) and Robert (2 years old). Cliff was in the British Army and served as a Corporal with the Royal Regiment of Fusiliers.

Cliff was born on 29th January 1950, he was only 23 years old when he was murdered along with his wife and two sons. Linda was also 23 years old, she was born on 20th May 1950.

The couple were from Manchester, once Linda left school she got a job in the local cotton mill, this is where she met Cliff who also worked there. They were together from a young age, they got married and had their two sons, Lee and Robert. Linda and Cliff were purely into their marriage and children.

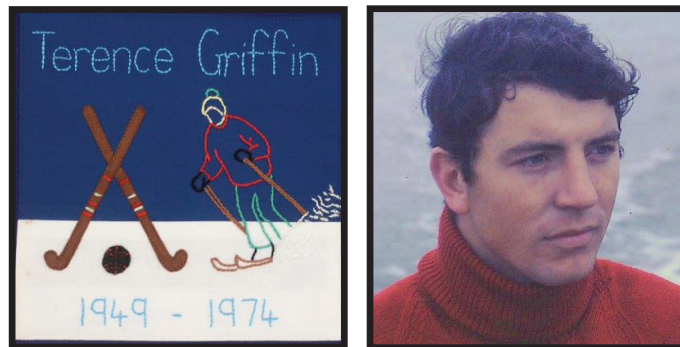

On the 4th February 1974 the family were travelling together from Manchester to the Army Barracks in Catterick. Cliff's car wouldn't start so they had to get the Army coach from Chorlton Street bus station in Manchester. The coach was blown up by a Provisional IRA bomb near Hartshead Moor service station in West Yorkshire. 12 people died in this atrocity including all four members of the Haughton family and over 50 people were injured.

The images that were chosen for the families patch are the silhouettes of two adults each holding the hand of a child, this represents the Haughton family - Cliff, Linda, Lee and Robert. A rainbow was also chosen as homage to Anne Morrison (Linda's sister) who has passed away but who was an ardent campaigner in the years after the tragedy, she wanted her voice to be heard and wanted people to know what happened to the Haughton family, she never got over the atrocity. The rainbow has been a motif for the family to remember her by and lastly the poppy is representing the Army in which Cliff served.

Bombardier TERENCE GRIFFIN

Service Number: 24023491 (Royal Regiment of Artillery)

20th May 1949 - 4th February 1974

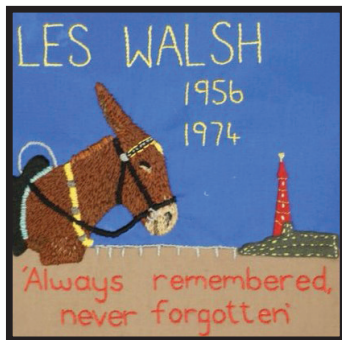

Terence Griffin was one of 12 people murdered when a Provisional IRA planted bomb went off on a coach travelling from Manchester to Catterick Garrison, North Yorkshire on 4th February 1974 in what has become known as, the M62 Coach Bomb attack.

The coach was carrying army personnel and their families, the bomb exploded within the luggage compartment of the coach while it travelled close to Hartshead Moor Service Station near Huddersfield.

Terence joined the army Royal Regiment Artillery and worked across various military bases abroad and throughout the UK, the last place he worked before his untimely murder was Catterick Garrison.

Terence loved all types of music; he enjoyed gardening, wood work and sports including skiing and hockey.

Signalman LESLIE DAVID WALSH

Service Number: 24286444 (Royal Corps of Signals)

28th October 1956 - 4th February 1974

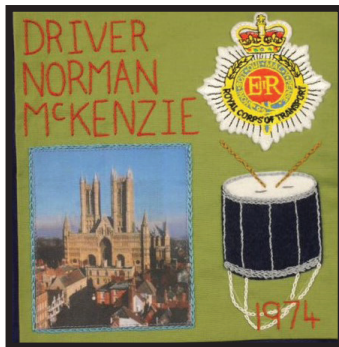

Leslie Walsh (known as Les) was one of 12 victims of the M62 Coach Bomb where a Provisional IRA bomb was detonated within the luggage compartment of a coach which was carrying army personnel and their families from Manchester to Catterick Garrison.

Les was born in Blackpool and spent most of his childhood there along with his parents, brothers and sisters. Although his family did not have much money they had everything that was important and had a very happy upbringing.

The Summer holidays were spent in Blackpool travelling from the stables to the beach with the donkeys where he and his brother, Albert would walk the donkeys giving rides to the holiday makers - this is why this image of a donkey is depicted on Les's patch within the 'Terrorism knows NO borders' memorial quilt.

Les was believed to have never been happier than when he joined the army; he made some genuine friends and seemed to really enjoy his time there.

Driver NORMAN WILLIAM McKENZIE

(Norman pictured writing a letter to his family from the barracks where he was stationed)

Service Number: 24097624 (Royal Corps of Transport)

3rd June 1948 - 11th April 1974

Norman was a 25 year old Driver within the Royal Corps of Transport, he always wanted to be in the army, as a young boy he dreamt about being a soldier. Once he left school he worked on the land but eventually when he was old enough he joined the army, service to his country was his ultimate goal.

During his short life Norman enjoyed music but specifically enjoyed playing the drums, at a young age he was a drummer boy for the Boys Brigade. He was also passionate about cars and enjoyed driving - he had only purchased his first car within the weeks leading up to his murder and had big plans to explore the country further. He enjoyed travelling and culture and planned to explore other countries throughout his life.

Norman was a driver in the Transport Corps, he wasn't due to be on duty the day of his murder but something required fixing so Norman volunteered to go and sort the problem out. He was tragically killed when his vehicle was blown up by a Provisional IRA landmine explosion, on the road between Lisnaskea and Newtownbutler, County Fermanagh. Norman was thrown from his vehicle, he was trapped under debris and died of asphyxiation.

Norman and his family were from Lincoln, his family thought it would be very fitting to commemorate this by including Lincoln Cathedral within the patch for Norman on the memorial quilt. Norman was also a very proud soldier, his job was his life and it was something he always wanted to do from being a very young boy.

In acknowledgement of Norman's service to his country the squadron badge was also included within the patch along with a drum recollecting his time in the Boys Brigade - and this is a very poignant memory for his family.

Civilian DOROTHY HOUSEHOLD

29th September 1928 - 17th July 1974

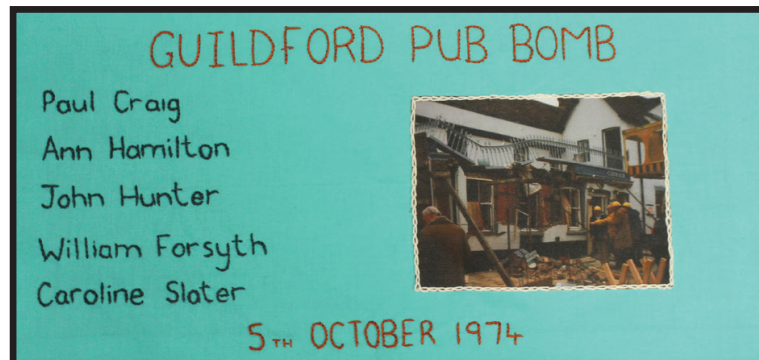

Dorothy Household was a 45-year-old lady who was recognised by her family and others as an amazing and committed Christian who believed passionately in evangelism. One such act involved Dorothy working alongside Rev. George Lovell (Who was engaged in work from England designed to help promote peace in Northern Ireland).

Dorothy was a librarian by profession, she attended Parchmore Methodist Church and Community Centre, her faith was everything to her. Dorothy was instrumental in having a floor inserted in the building so that the ground floor could accommodate a community centre for the challenging London suburb in which it is situated. The chapel is now less lofty and the space Dorothy helped create is now doing sterling work for the wider community. Dorothy was a powerful yet modest Christian soul, she was in the Tower of London on 17th July 1974 taking two little children there to give their parents a break for the day.

Unfortunately, they were there when a Provisional IRA bomb exploded in the White Tower of the Tower of London. Dorothy was the only person to lose her life; the little ones that were with her were severely injured but thankfully survived. At least 40 other people were also injured, with many losing limbs and suffering severe facial injuries.

On Dorothy's quilt patch there is a book to represent her profession, there is also an outline of the gable end of Parchmore Methodist Church & Community Centre to represent her faith and the work she carried out within the parish, lastly there is a silhouette of the White Tower in the Tower of London (where the Provisional IRA outrage occurred).

GUILDFORD PUB BOMB

The Guildford pub bombings occurred on 5th October 1974. PIRA terrorists detonated two 6-pound gelignite bombs at two pubs in Guildford, Surrey, southwest of London. Four soldiers and one civilian were murdered, whilst a further sixty-five were wounded.

The bomb in the Horse and Groom detonated at 8:30pm. It killed Paul Craig (a 22-year-old plasterer), two members of the Scots Guards and two members of the Women's Royal Army Corps. The Seven Stars was evacuated after the first blast, and thus there were no serious injuries when the second bomb exploded at 9:00pm.

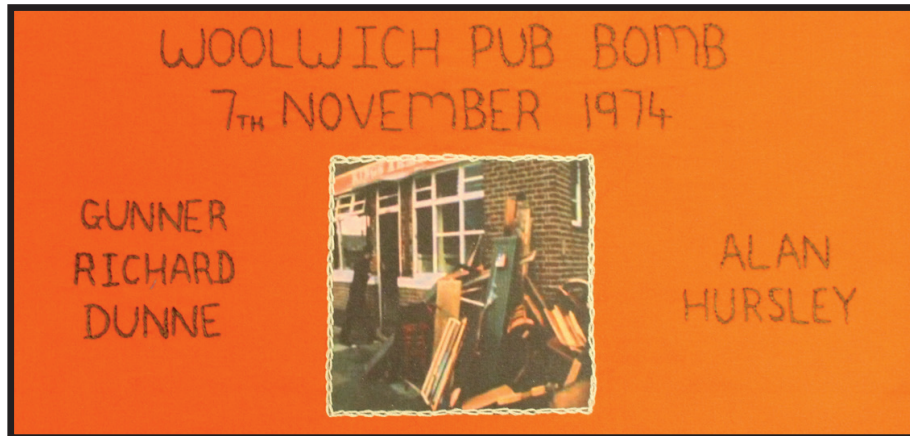

These attacks were the first in a year-long campaign by an IRA terror cell - who were eventually captured after the Balcombe Street Siege.

The 'Guildford 4' were adjudged to have been wrongfully convicted of the atrocity many years after having been imprisoned for the crime.

WOOLWICH PUB BOMB

The Kings Arms is a public house in Woolwich, London that was bombed in 1974 and is now a landmark on the route of the London Marathon.

A bomb made of 6lb of gelignite with the addition of shrapnel was thrown through the window into the bar on 7 November 1974. Two people were murdered in the explosion; Gunner Richard Dunne (aged 42), of the Royal Artillery and Alan Horsley (aged 20), a sales clerk. 28 people, including the landlady, Margaret Nash, were injured.

Responsibility for this bombing was subsequently claimed by PIRA and specifically by part of the terror cell apprehended at the Balcombe Street Siege. Some of the Guildford Four were wrongfully charged with involvement in this bombing.

BIRMINGHAM PUB BOMBS

The Birmingham pub bombings (also known as the Birmingham bombings) occurred on 21 November 1974, when bombs exploded in two public houses in central Birmingham, England. The explosions killed 21 people and injured 182 others.

The Provisional Irish Republican Army have never officially admitted responsibility for the Birmingham pub bombings, but a former senior officer of the organisation confessed to their involvement in 2014, with an admission the Birmingham pub bombings “went against everything we [the Provisional Irish Republican Army] claimed to stand for”.

Six Irishmen were arrested within hours of the blasts, and in 1975 sentenced to life imprisonment for the bombings. After 16 years in prison and a lengthy campaign, their convictions were declared unsafe and unsatisfactory, and quashed by the Court of Appeal in 1991.

The Birmingham pub bombings were the deadliest act of terrorism committed in Great Britain between the Second World War and the 2005 London bombings.

It is often said that the greatest act of injustice was experienced by the “Birmingham 6” but surely the greater injustice was the decision taken by a terrorism organisation to mass murder innocents - and to this day continue to deny victims and survivors the truth of the events that unfolded on that fateful day which saw their loved ones massacred.

Sergeant MARTIN EAMON WALSH

Service Number: 24060262 (Royal Army Ordnance Corps)

22nd August 1948 - 9th January 1977

Martin grew up in Wales; he joined the Royal Army Ordnance Corps as a bomb disposal expert. Martin was married to Eve and they had two children, Karen (aged 4 years) and Andrew (aged 2 years), they lived in Hereford.

Martin was a massive ABBA fan and also had a love for cars, especially Volkswagens' and the 'Herbie' beetle; this explains what is symbolised on his patch on the Memorial Quilt. The leek represents his love of his home country, Wales.

It was on 9th January 1977 that Martin was murdered when an IRA bomb detonated near Newtownbutler, it was an anti-handling bomb and was the first of its' type. He was reaching into the milk churn attempting to dismantle the bomb when it exploded. He is much loved and missed by his family.

AIREY NEAVE MP

23rd January 1916 - 30th March 1979

Airey Middleton Sheffield Neave was a British army officer, barrister and politician.

During World War II, Neave was the first British officer to successfully escape from the German prisoner-of-war camp Oflag IV-C at Colditz Castle. He later became Conservative Member of Parliament (MP) for Abingdon.

Airey Neave was murdered on 30th March 1979, when a magnetic car bomb fitted with a ball bearing tilt switch exploded under his new Vauxhall Cavalier at 14:58pm as he drove out of the Palace of Westminster car park. He lost his right leg below the knee and his left was hanging on by a flap of skin. Neave died in hospital an hour after being freed from the wreckage without regaining consciousness. The Irish National Liberation Army (INLA), an Irish republican terrorist group, claimed responsibility for the killing.

Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher led tributes, saying: "He was one of freedom's warriors. No one knew of the great man he was, except those nearest to him. He was staunch, brave, true, strong; but he was very gentle and kind and loyal. It's a rare combination of qualities. There's no one else who can quite fill them. I, and so many other people, owe so much to him and now we must carry on for the things he fought for and not let the people who got him triumph".

Sergeant ROBERT MAUGHAN

Service Number: 24174530 (9/12 Lancers)
7th July 1948 - 6th May 1979

Robert was a Sergeant, working in intelligence in the 9/12 Lancers, he was from Northumberland. Robert had a brother and a sister; he was 30 years of age when he was murdered by the IRA alongside Detective-Constable Norman Prue outside Holy Cross Church in Lisnaskea.

Robert, fondly known as 'George' had a much loved pet, a dog called 'Buster'. He had asked a local man would he look after the dog if anything ever happened to him, little did he know what his fate would hold. This is why the dog is depicted within the patch along with the regimental crest of the 9/12 lancers.

NARROW WATER

The Narrow Water massacre was a guerrilla attack carried out by PIRA terrorists on The British Army on 27th August 1979. The IRA's South Armagh Brigade ambushed the British Army with two large roadside bombs at Narrow Water Castle (near Warrenpoint)

The first bomb targeted a British Army convoy and the second targeted the reinforcements sent to deal with the incident. IRA terrorists hidden in nearby woodland also allegedly fired on the troops. The Narrow Water castle is on the banks of the Newry River, which marks the border between Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland.

Eighteen British soldiers were killed and six were seriously injured, making it the deadliest attack on the British Army during the 'Troubles.' An English civilian (William Michael Hudson) was killed and his cousin injured when British soldiers fired across the border after the first blast.

The attack happened on the same day that the Provisional IRA murdered Lord Louis Mountbatten, one of his twin grandsons Nicholas (14) and local boy Paul Maxwell (15) with Lady Doreen Brabourne also dying the following day.

The clear intent of the day's outrages was to create maximum propaganda for the terrorist organisation striking at the heart of the 'British Establishment.'

Corporal LEONARD JONES

Service Number: 24154839 (Parachute Regiment)

18th May 1953 - 27th August 1979

Leonard Jones was born on the 18th May 1953 in Patricroft Hospital, Eccles, Manchester. He attended Primary School at St. Andrews, Eccles and Private in Winton. He also attended church and sang in the choir.

Leonard's hobbies included heading off with his little bucket and fishing rod along the canal, he always took his Golden Retriever dog, Brandy. He loved to watch football and played with toy soldiers, hence his decision later in life to join the army.

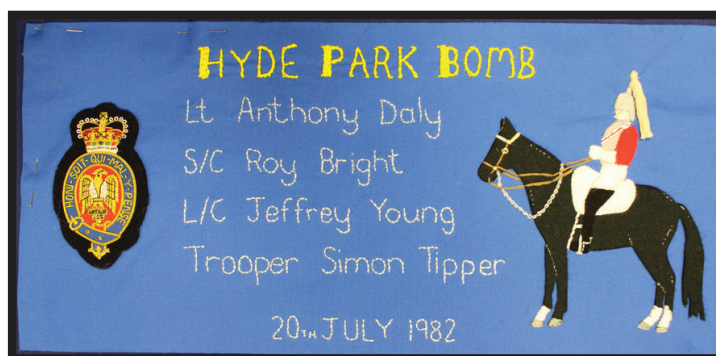

Leonard joined the 2nd Parachute Regiment before his 16th birthday, he was one of the youngest to do a parachute jump. While serving with the Parachute Regiment he completed a number of tours of Northern Ireland and had his fair share of ups and downs.

Amongst his hobbies and interests, he also enjoyed music and played the base drum in the Army Band. At the time of his murder he was married with one daughter.

Leonard was due to go back to Aldershot on the 28th or 29th of August but was fatally wounded by a vicious bomb on the 27th August, 17 of his comrades were also killed that fateful day at Narrow Water, Warrenpoint.

Leonard was given a wonderful funeral with honours and lots of yellow, full and half open roses

HYDE PARK BOMB & REGENTS PARK BOMBINGS

The Hyde Park and Regent's Park bombings occurred on 20th July 1982 in London. Members of the Provisional Irish Republican Army (IRA) detonated two bombs during British military ceremonies in Hyde Park and Regent's Park, both in central London. The explosions murdered 11 military personnel: four soldiers of the Blues & Royals at Hyde Park, and seven bandsmen of the Royal Green Jackets at Regent's Park. Seven of the Blues & Royals' horses also died. One seriously injured horse, Sefton, survived and was featured on TV programmes and awarded "Horse of the Year".

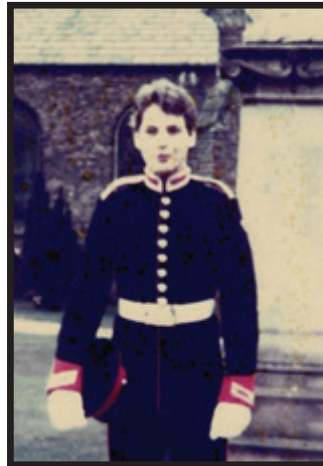

Hyde Park

The bomb exploded as soldiers of the Household Cavalry, Queen Elizabeth II's official bodyguard regiment, were passing. They were taking part in their daily Changing of the Guard procession from their barracks in Knightsbridge to Horse Guards Parade. Three soldiers of the Blues & Royals were killed outright, and another, their standard-bearer, died from his wounds three days later.

Hyde Park Victims

Lieutenant Denis Richard Anthony Daly	Aged 23
Squadron Quartermaster Corporal Roy John Bright	Aged 36
Lance Corporal Jeffrey Vernon Young	Aged 19
Trooper Simon Andrew Tipper	Aged 19

Trooper SIMON ANDREW TIPPER

Service Number: 24448853 (Royal Horse Guard's Dragoons)

6th December 1962 - 20th July 1982

Simon Tipper was 19 years old and recently married at the point of his murder. He and his wife had no children. He was one of four soldiers whose lives were stolen via the Hyde Park Bombing of 20th July 1982.

Among Simon's interests were music, football and he loved dogs, in particular Staffordshire Bull Terriers.

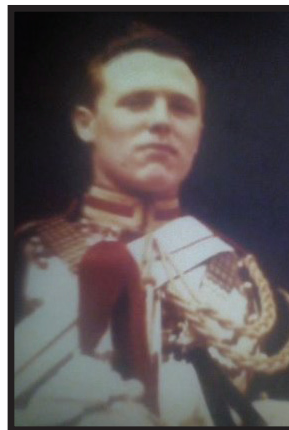

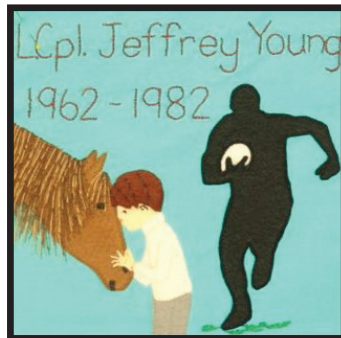

He was an avid Aston Villa fan which is why the club are represented on his patch within the memorial quilt.

Simon's brother Mark along with representatives of the other families impacted by the bomb has carried forward the campaign for justice concerning the murder of his brother and colleagues.

Mark has been across to Northern Ireland on a number of occasions to raise awareness of the case and to build support.

Criminal and civil cases into Hyde Park remain active.

Lance Corporal JEFFREY VERNON YOUNG

Service Number: 24527970 (Royal Horse Guard's Dragoons)

27th July 1962 - 21st July 1982

Jeffrey (Jeff) Young was from the small Welsh mining village of Tonyrefail. From a very young age he had a great interest in horses and rode them as a young boy.

He joined the Blues & Royals Household Cavalry and on 20th July 1982 he was severely injured in the Hyde Park bombing which saw three other comrades die outright, Jeff passed away at 4am on the morning of 21st July 1982 after surgeons fought to save his life. There were also several others who sustained both physical and psychological injuries. A number of horses also died.

A troop of soldiers in full regalia were making their way on horseback through Hyde Park on their way from Knightsbridge Barracks to carry out duties in Whitehall. The bomb planted by the Provisional IRA exploded just before 11am.

Jeff was married with two small daughters; he was buried on the day after his 20th birthday.

REGENT'S PARK

The second attack happened at about 12:55 pm, when a bomb exploded underneath a bandstand in Regent's Park. Thirty Military bandsmen of the Royal Green Jackets were on the stand performing music from Oliver! to a crowd of 120 people. Six of the bandsmen were killed outright and the rest were wounded; a seventh died of his wounds on 1st August. At least eight civilians were also injured. The bomb had been hidden under the stand some time before and triggered by a timer.

In 2013, John Downey was charged with four counts of murder in relation to the Hyde Park attack; his trial began in January 2014 but collapsed the following month after a ruling upon a letter sent to him by police assuring him that he would not be prosecuted over the attack. No one has ever been charged in connection with the Regent's Park bombing. The trial collapse unlocked one of the grubbiest and dirtiest side deals done over the years of the 'Peace Process' between the Government and The Republican Movement. Not for the first time, victims were at the bottom of the pecking order in respect of priorities.

HARRODS BOMB

The Harrods bombing perpetrated by PIRA terrorists refers to the car bomb that exploded outside Harrods department store in central London on Saturday 17th December 1983. The blast killed three police officers and three civilians, injured 90 people, and caused much damage.

The IRA had been bombing commercial targets in England since the early 1970s, as part of its “economic war”. The goal was to damage the economy and cause disruption for the purpose of putting pressure on the British government to withdraw from Northern Ireland.

The bystanders killed were Philip Geddes (24), a journalist who had heard about the alert and went to the scene; Jasmine Cochrane-Patrick (25); and Kenneth Salvesen (28), a US citizen. The Metropolitan Police officers killed were Sergeant Noel Lane (28); Constable Jane Arbuthnot (22); and Inspector Stephen Dodd (34), who died of his injuries on 24th December. Constable Jon Gordon survived, but lost both legs and part of a hand in the blast, several others suffered physical and/or psychological injuries.

WPC JANE PHILIPPA ARBUTHNOT

Metropolitan Police
8th October 1961 - 17th December 1983

Jane was a WPC for the Metropolitan Police in London. She was only 22 years old when she was murdered when an IRA bomb exploded while she and her colleagues were investigating a Terrorist car parked close to Harrod's Store in Knightsbridge.

Jane was unmarried; she was a daughter to Sue and Jake Arbuthnot and a younger sister of Richard, Sally and Charles.

During her short life Jane had a keen interest in dinghy sailing and enjoyed horse riding which is why these images are depicted within her patch on the Memorial Quilt.

Inspector STEPHEN JOHN DODD

Metropolitan Police

11th November 1949 - 24th December 1983

Stephen Dodd was an Inspector for the Metropolitan Police in London. He was seriously injured while inspecting a car near Harrods Department Store in London, the car was pried with explosives. He spent a week fighting for his life in Central Middlesex Hospital but alas lost his battle on the Eve of Christmas, 24th December 1983.

Margaret Thatcher wrote a letter to the family on Christmas Eve expressing her sympathy to them, 'Britain has lost a brave and wonderful member of our Police force. You have lost a dearly loved husband and father.'

Stephen was married with three children at the time of his murder. He was a very proud Police Officer and a caring husband and father.

In his spare time Stephen enjoyed sport but in particular he had a keen interest in football and played for Windsor.

LAKELAND FORUM / FISHERMEN BOMB

On 18th May 1984 PIRA placed a bomb device under the vehicle being travelled in by four men who were soldiers attached to the 1st Royal Regiment of Fusiliers. The bomb was placed under their vehicle which was parked near Enniskillen Royal British Legion. The men were off duty and were participating in a fishing competition being held in Enniskillen.

Thomas Henry Agar, 35-years-old, married with 1 child and a soldier with the Royal Regiment of Fusiliers holding the rank of Corporal and Robert Huggins, 29-years-old, married with 3 children and a soldier with the Royal Regiment of Fusiliers holding the rank of Lance-Corporal were murdered instantly.

Lance Corporal Peter Gallimore, 27 years old, died exactly five months later on 18th October 1984 and was the 3rd soldier that had been injured in the explosion. A fourth soldier Clive Aldridge survived but suffered serious disablements. The soldiers were all based at Ballykelly and were taking part in an annual Sealink Classic angling competition. They had finished their fishing and returned to their car at 5:30pm and as the car moved, the bomb exploded. The roof of the car was blown some 50 yards by the explosion.

In May 2016 SEFF brought across the four families impacted by the atrocity and in partnership with Enniskillen Royal British Legion installed a photo montage plaque in the Legion remembering those directly impacted by the atrocity.

Corporal THOMAS HENRY AGAR

Service Number: 24402310 (Royal Regiment of Fusiliers)

5th February 1949 - 18th May 1984

Thomas Agar was born in Stanley, County Durham and joined the 1st Battalion Royal Regiment of Fusiliers in 1975.

At the time of his murder, Thomas had served within the Regiment for nine years and had intended to sign up for a further period of service.

Thomas was Rugby daft and played for the Regimental Rugby team and many other teams. He was also a keen fisherman which is depicted on his Quilt patch along with the badge of his Regiment. Thomas loved almost all sports and was a devoted and loving husband and father.

Thomas left behind wife Sheila and 8 year-old son Craig.

Lance Corporal ROBERT (BOB) VERNON HUGGINS

Service Number: 24304032 (Royal Regiment of Fusiliers)

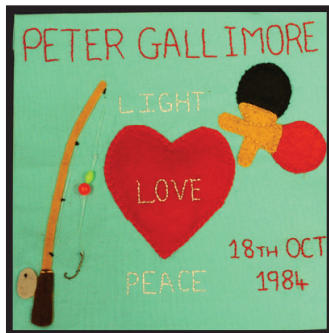

11th March 1955 - 18th May 1984

Robert was also known as Bob, he was from Gorton near Manchester and joined the army once he came of age, he served with the 1st Battalion of the Royal Regiment of Fusiliers.

Bob married Christine when he was 19 years old, they were 10 years married at the time of his murder, Bob & Christine had 3 boys, Jason, Mark and Wesley, they were aged 8, 7 and 4 years old at the time of their Father's death.

Bob was an all-round sportsman; he enjoyed playing rugby, running and was a keen fisherman. This is why fishing is depicted within his patch on the Memorial Quilt.

Lance Corporal PETER WILLIAM GALLIMORE

Service Number: 24414151 (Royal Regiment of Fusiliers)

14th May 1957 - 18th October 1984

Peter was born in Farnworth in Bolton, he joined the army in 1976 and served with the 1st Battalion of the Royal Regiment of Fusiliers.

He was married to Annette and they had one son, Sam who was 4 years old when Peter was murdered. Annette described her husband as a down to earth, truthful and honest man.

Peter enjoyed playing Table Tennis and competed in regional competitions. He also loved to fish which ultimately led to his death when a bomb exploded underneath the car he was travelling in; Peter was off duty and was attending a fishing competition with three others.

Born and bred in Bolton Peter supported Bolton Wanderers but was also an avid Manchester United fan.

BRIGHTON HOTEL BOMB

The Brighton hotel bombing was a PIRA assassination attempt against the top tier of the British government in 1984. It missed its main targets but killed five others. It occurred on 12th October 1984 at the Grand Hotel in Brighton, England. A long-delay time bomb was planted in the hotel by Provisional Irish Republican Army (IRA) member Patrick Magee, with the purpose of killing Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her cabinet, who were staying at the hotel for the Conservative Party conference. Although Thatcher narrowly escaped injury, five people were murdered including a sitting Conservative MP, (Sir Anthony Berry) and 31 were injured (including Lord Tebbit and his wife Margaret).

Brighton Hotel Bomb Victims

Sir Anthony Berry	(Conservative MP)
Mr Eric Taylor	(North-West Area Chairman of the Conservative Party)
Lady Jeanne Shattock	(wife of Sir Gordon Shattock, Western Area Chairman of the Conservative Party)
Lady Muriel Maclean	(wife of Sir Donald Maclean, President of the Scottish Conservatives)
Mrs Roberta Wakeham	(wife of Parliamentary Treasury Secretary John Wakeham)

BALLYGAWLEY BUS BOMB

The Ballygawley bus bombing was a roadside bomb attack by the Provisional Irish Republican Army (IRA) on a bus carrying British soldiers in Northern Ireland. It occurred in the early hours of 20th August 1988 in the townland of Curr near Ballygawley, County Tyrone.

The attack murdered eight soldiers and wounded another 28. It was the second-deadliest attack on the British Army in Northern Ireland during the 'Troubles,' after the Warrenpoint ambush of 1979. In the wake of the bombing the British Army began ferrying its troops in and out of County Tyrone by helicopter.

The bus was transporting 36 soldiers of The Light Infantry from RAF Aldergrove to a military base near Omagh. The soldiers, who came from England, had just finished 18 months of a two-year tour of duty in Northern Ireland and were returning to the base after a short holiday.

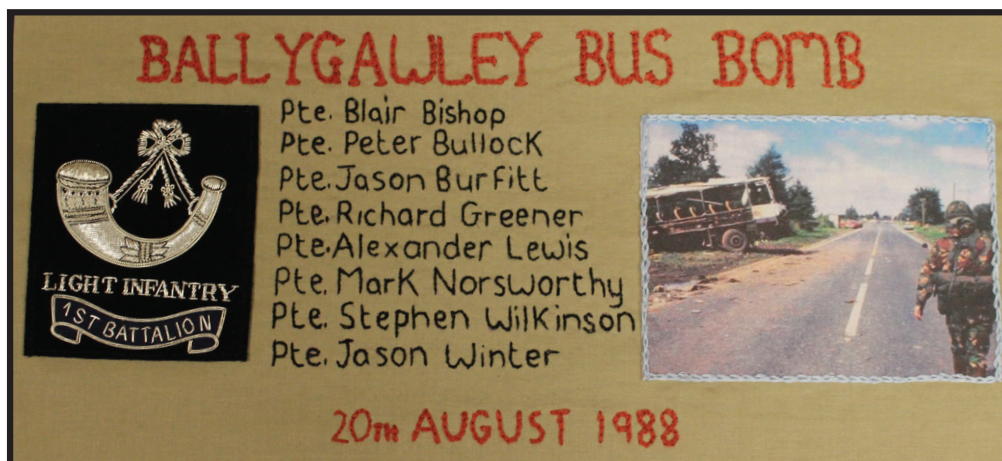

As it was driving along the main road from Ballygawley to Omagh, at about 12:30AM, IRA members remotely detonated a roadside bomb containing 200 pounds (91 kg) of semtex. According to police, the bomb had been planted in a vehicle by the roadside and had been detonated by command wire from 330 yards (300 m) away. The blast hurled the bus 30 metres down the road and threw the soldiers into neighbouring hedges and fields. It left a crater 6 feet (1.8 m) deep and scattered body parts and twisted metal over a wide area.

Witnesses described finding dead, dying and wounded soldiers strewn on the road and caught in the wreckage of the bus. Others were walking around, "stunned". Some of the first to arrive on the scene and offer help were bandsmen of the Omagh Protestant Boy's Band and Star of the Valley, Londonderry returning from a parade in Portadown, who had also been travelling in buses.

Since the 25th Anniversary of the attack, SEFF has assisted in bringing back the bereaved and survivors of the attack to Northern Ireland to support them in their journey of personal healing.

Private RICHARD GREENER

Service Number: 24705273 (1st Light Infantry)
18th October 1966 - 20th August 1988

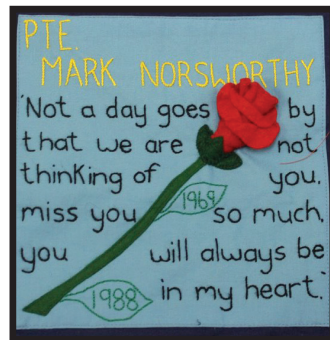

Richard was from Whitley Bay, North Tyneside he was a Private in the 1st Battalion of the Light Infantry and was a proud soldier.

When Richard returned from leave he would stay with his mum and dad, Michael and Dorothy Greener. He also had a brother (Vic) and a twin sister (Susan).

Richard also known as Richie was a devoted UB40 fan and loved listening to their music, that is why UB40 were chosen to represent Richard on the Memorial Quilt along with his cap badge.

Richie was one of 8 soldiers within the 1st Battalion of the Light Infantry who was murdered when the bus they were travelling in hit an IRA device on the Ballygawley to Omagh Road. The soldiers had just completed around 18 months in Northern Ireland and were returning to their base in Omagh when the bombed exploded under their unmarked bus.

Private MARK ANTHONY NORSWORTHY

Service Number: 24771499 (1st Light Infantry)
13th November 1969 - 20th August 1988

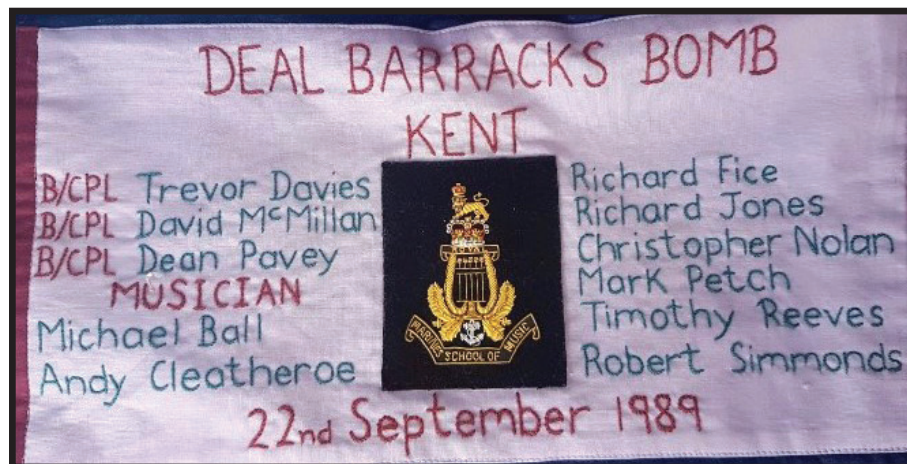

Mark Norsworthy was in the 1st Battalion Light Infantry and was one of eight soldiers murdered in the Ballygawley Bus Bomb carried out on 20th August 1988 and committed by Provisional IRA terrorists.

When Mark was younger he worked on a local building site and also used to sell ice creams, he did this until he was old enough to join the army as that was all he wanted to do.

He joined the Light Infantry and seemed to enjoy his time in the army. Mark was said to very much enjoy his sleep but he also was an adrenalin junkie and liked to watch horror movies.

Surviving family have returned to Omagh and Northern Ireland, the place which stole Mark away. The Norsworthy family and others impacted by the Ballygawley Bus Bomb appear to have gained some comfort from the knowledge that neither Mark nor they are forgotten by the people of Northern Ireland - that their sacrifice is acknowledged and will continue to be remembered with honour.

DEAL BARRACKS BOMB

The Deal barracks bombing was an attack by PIRA terrorists on the Royal Marine Depot, Deal, England. It took place at 8:22 am on 22nd September 1989, when the IRA exploded a time bomb at the Royal Marines School of Music building. The building collapsed, killing 11 marines from the Royal Marines Band Service and wounding another 21.

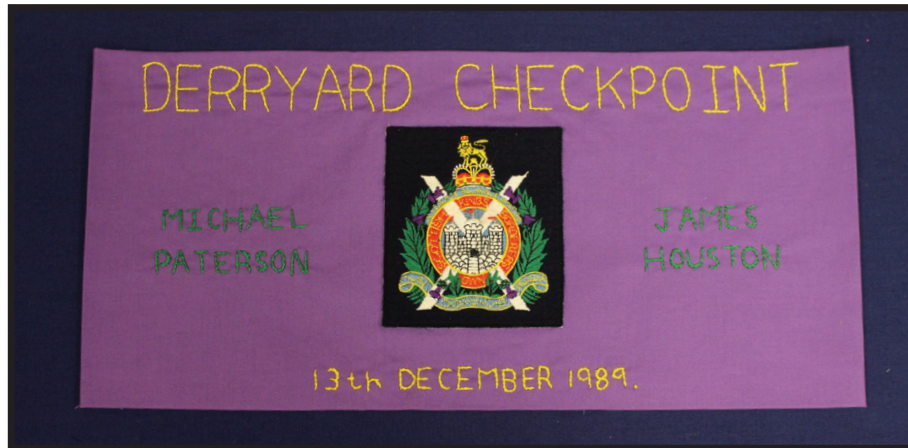

The blast destroyed the recreational centre, levelled the three-story accommodation building next to it and caused extensive damage to the rest of the base and nearby civilian homes. The blast was heard several kilometres away, shaking windows in the centre of Deal, and created a large pall of smoke over the town.

Kent Ambulance Service voluntarily agreed to end its industrial strike action to aid those wounded by the blast. Ten marines died at the scene with most trapped in the collapsed building, although one body was later found on the roof of a nearby house. Another 21 were seriously injured and received treatment at hospitals in Dover, Deal and Canterbury. One of these men, 21-year-old Christopher Nolan, died of his wounds on 18th October 1989. Three of those killed were buried nearby at the Hamilton Road Cemetery, Deal.

DERRYARD CHECKPOINT

On 13th December 1989 the Provisional Irish Republican Army (IRA) attacked a British Army permanent vehicle checkpoint complex manned by the King's Own Scottish Borderers (KOSB) near the border at Derryard, close to Rosslea County Fermanagh murdering two soldiers; Lance Corporal Michael Paterson and Private James Houston.

The permanent vehicle checkpoint was manned by eight soldiers from the 1st Battalion The King's Own Scottish Borderers and one RUC officer. The attack took place shortly after 4pm. During the attack the IRA sealed off roads leading to the checkpoint. A truck was then driven from the border and halted at the checkpoint. As Private Houston began to check the back of the truck, the IRA opened fire with assault rifles and threw grenades into the compound. Two rocket-propelled grenades were fired at the observation post while a flamethrower was aimed at the command post. Heavy shooting continued as the truck reversed and smashed through the gates of the compound.

PIRA also detonated a van bomb after the initial assault. The attack was finally repulsed by a section of the King's Own Scottish Borderers that was patrolling nearby. A Wessex helicopter was brought in for air support and the IRA gang, at risk of being surrounded, fled towards the border. Their vehicle was later found abandoned with a 210 kg bomb on board.

IAN GOW MP

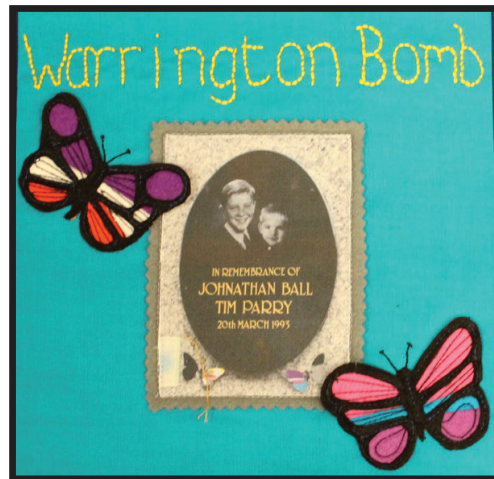

11th February 1937 - 30th July 1990

Ian Reginald Edward Gow, was a British Conservative politician and solicitor. While serving as Member of Parliament (MP) for Eastbourne, he was assassinated by PIRA terrorists who exploded a bomb under his car outside his home in East Sussex. He was the last to be killed in a string of British politicians assassinated by the IRA.

On 30th July 1990, a bomb was planted under Gow's Austin Montego car in the early hours, which exploded in the driveway of his house in Hankham, near Pevensey in East Sussex. The 4½-lb Semtex bomb detonated at 08:39am as Gow reversed out of his driveway, leaving him with severe wounds to his lower body. He died ten minutes later.

Ian Gow was viewed a close ally and friend of the then Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher whose position at the helm of UK politics came to its' end just six months after the murder of Mr Gow.

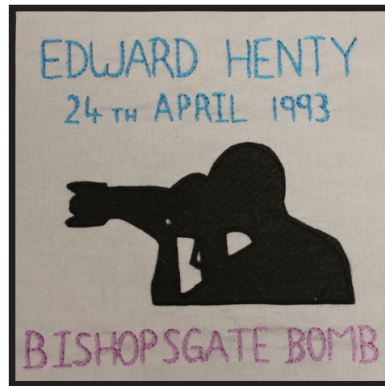

WARRINGTON BOMBS

On 20th March 1993, The Samaritans in Liverpool received a bomb warning by telephone. Two bombs then exploded on Bridge Street in Warrington, about 100 yards apart. The blasts happened within a minute of each other. One exploded outside Boots and McDonald's, and one outside the Argos catalogue store. The area was crowded with shoppers. Witnesses said that shoppers fled from the first explosion into the path of the second. It was later found that the bombs had been placed inside cast-iron litter bins, causing large amounts of shrapnel. Buses were organized to ferry people away from the scene and 20 paramedics and crews from 17 ambulances were sent to deal with the aftermath.

Three-year-old Johnathan Ball died at the scene. He had been in town with his babysitter, shopping for a Mother's Day card. The second victim, 12-year-old Tim Parry, was gravely wounded. He died on 25th March 1993 when doctors switched his life support machine off, having asked permission to do so from his family, after tests had found minimal brain activity. Fifty-four other people were injured, four of them seriously.

BISHOPSGATE BOMB

The Bishopsgate bombing occurred on Saturday 24th April 1993, when the Provisional Irish Republican Army (IRA) detonated an ANFO truck bomb on Bishopsgate, a major thoroughfare in London's financial district, the City of London. The IRA's South Armagh Brigade were the architects of the bombing.

A news photographer was killed in the explosion and 44 people were injured; the damage cost approx £350 million to repair. As a result of the bombing, which occurred just over a year after the bombing of the nearby Baltic Exchange, a "ring of steel" was implemented to protect the City, and many firms introduced disaster recovery plans in case of further attacks or similar disasters.

At approximately 9am on 24 April, two terrorists from an IRA active service unit drove the truck containing the bomb onto Bishopsgate. They parked the truck outside 99 Bishopsgate, which was then the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, located by the junction with Wormwood Street and Camomile Street, and left the area in a car driven by an accomplice. A series of telephone warnings were then delivered from a phonebox in Forkhill, County Armagh, Northern Ireland, with the caller using a recognised IRA codeword and stating "[there's] a massive bomb... clear a wide area". Two police officers were already making inquiries into the truck when the warnings were received, and police began evacuating the area.

Civilian casualties were low as it was a Saturday morning and the City was typically occupied by only a small number of residents, office workers, security guards, builders, and maintenance staff. Forty-four people were injured by the bomb and News of the World photographer Ed Henty was killed after ignoring police warnings and rushing to the scene.

Guardsman DANIEL MARTIN BLINCO

Service Number: 24902811 (Grenadier Guards)

30th December 1993

Grenadier Guardsman Daniel Blinco was murdered just two weeks after Prime Minister John Major and Taoiseach Albert Reynolds signed the Downing Street Declaration in December 1993.

The declaration was described as “a charter for peace and reconciliation” on the island of Ireland and was followed by the Provisional IRA ceasefire eight months later in August 1994.

Guardsman Blinco, 22, from Melbourne in Derbyshire had been on foot patrol in the south Armagh village of Crossmaglen - known in military circles as ‘XMG’ - when he was shot by a Provisional IRA sniper. It was his second tour of duty in Northern Ireland.

Daniel is described by his family as having been, “an all-around sportsman and was in the Guards’ cycling and swimming teams, friendly and outgoing, 6’6” tall and handsome.”

On the 20th anniversary of the murder in December 2013, the people of Melbourne rededicated a bench in the town in memory of Guardsman Blinco following a Grenadier Guards parade in his honour. Guardsman Blinco was one of ten soldiers and police officers killed in sniper attacks in the south Armagh area during a two-year period.

SEFF’s Director of Services Kenny Donaldson and his father John were in Crossmaglen on the day of Daniel’s murder and were in close proximity to the incident.

MASSEREENE MURDERS

On 7th March 2009, two off-duty British soldiers of 38 Engineer Regiment were shot dead outside Massereene Barracks in Antrim town, Northern Ireland. Those killed were Sappers Mark Quinsey from Birmingham and Patrick Azimkar from London. The other two soldiers and two deliverymen were wounded. The soldiers were wearing desert fatigues and were to be deployed to Afghanistan the next day.

Two other soldiers and two civilian delivery men were also shot and wounded during the attack. The Real IRA, claimed responsibility.

The terrorist murders were the first British military fatalities in Northern Ireland since 1997. Two days later, the Continuity IRA shot dead Constable Stephen Carroll; the first RUC/PSNI Officer to be killed by terrorists since 1998. These attacks marked the beginning of the most intensive period of “dissident republican” activity since the start of their campaign.

At about 21:40pm on the evening of Saturday of 7th March, four off-duty British soldiers of the Royal Engineers walked outside the barracks to receive a pizza delivery from two delivery men. As the exchange was taking place, two masked gunmen in a nearby car (a green Vauxhall Cavalier) opened fire with Romanian AKM automatic rifles. The firing lasted for more than 30 seconds with more than 60 shots being fired. After the initial burst of gunfire, the gunmen walked over to the wounded soldiers lying on the ground and fired again at close range, killing two of them. A few hours later, the car involved was found abandoned near Randalstown, eight miles from the barracks.

A Dublin-based newspaper, the Sunday Tribune, received a phone call from a caller using a recognised Real IRA codeword. The caller claimed responsibility for the attack on behalf of the Real IRA, adding that the civilian pizza deliverymen were legitimate targets as they were “collaborating with the British by servicing them”.

PATRICK AZIMKAR

Service Number: 25217846 (Royal Engineers)

6th January 1988 - 7th March 2009

Patrick's name shows his dual heritage, Cypriot dad and mum, English of Irish descent. Patrick had a connection with Northern Ireland as his grandfather was born and brought up there. For all that though Pat was a Londoner, born and bred and a keen supporter of our local team, Tottenham Hotspur.

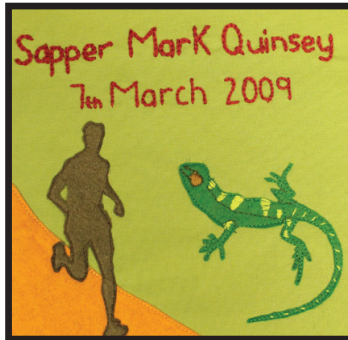

Pat was always a lively lad, strong, full of energy and good fun. He was a good sportsman and excelled in football. From a young age he played for top local club teams and for his school team, which reached the finals of The English Schools Cup.

Aged 18 Patrick joined the Royal Engineers and following in his father's footsteps chose carpentry and joinery for his trade training. He enjoyed Army life and thrived on the physical and mental challenges, the camaraderie and the close friendships he forged there. He demonstrated good leadership skills in the Army and great promise but sadly he had no time to fulfill his potential or his dreams.

On March 7th 2009 Patrick and his friend Mark were murdered in a terrible and brutal attack by dissident republican IRA terrorists as they collected a pizza delivery outside the Massereene barracks in Antrim. Patrick was just 21 years old. Patrick leaves a trail of broken hearts behind him, most especially Mum, Dad and his beloved older brother James.

The commemorative badges shown on the quilt were designed and sold by members of the Antrim Royal British Legion and raised over £15,000 for the Royal Engineers Benevolent Fund.

Sapper MARK QUINSEY

Service Number: 25201497 (Royal Engineers)

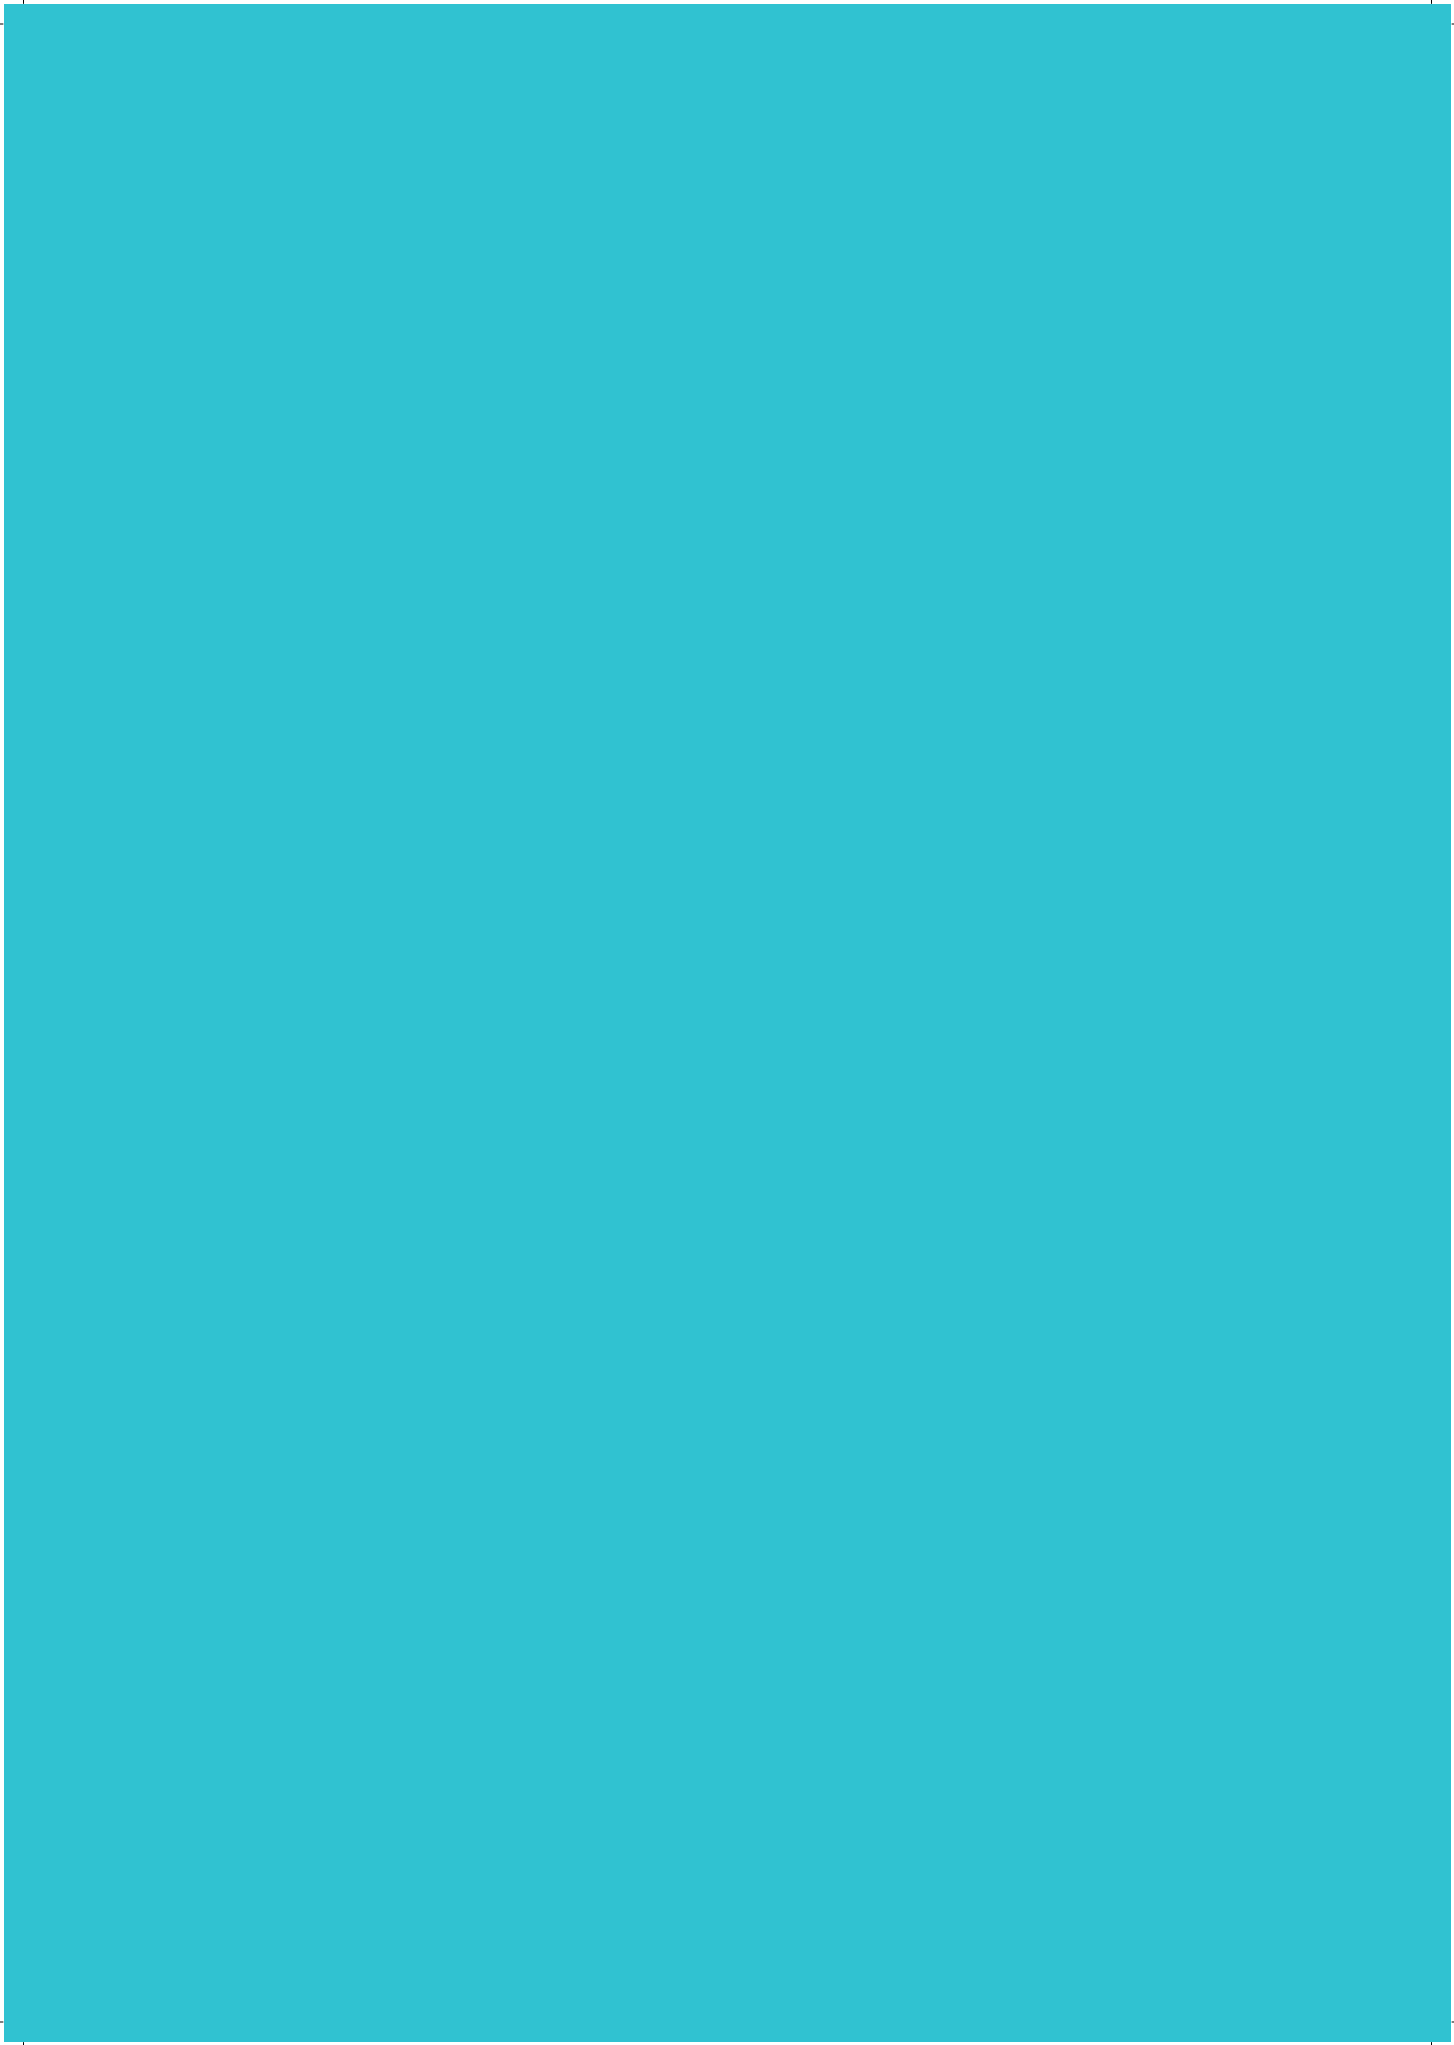

1st January 1985 - 7th March 2009

Mark Quinsey was born in Birmingham in 1985 and joined the army when he was 19. Mark completed his basic training and went on to attend the Combat Engineer Course at Minley before qualifying as an electrician at the Royal School of Military Engineering in Chatham. He served with 38 Engineer Regiment in both Ripon and Northern Ireland.

Mark's one hobby was fishing, he loved it. He enjoyed keeping fit, he would often go out jogging with his Dad but he also liked to attend the gym.

Whilst growing up Mark was very close to his sister, Jaime and she recalls how inquisitive he was and how he always wanted to know 'why?'. He was into making things and learning how things worked from an early age and so he went on to do his engineer course in the army.

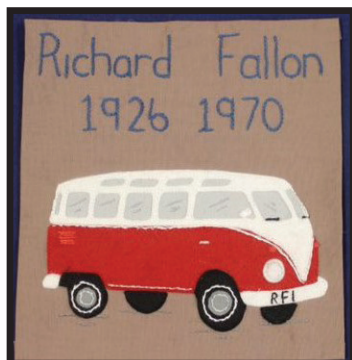

Mark also loved reptiles, he had a few lizards and snakes as pets when he was younger. Mark was a joker and loved to laugh, he was a dare devil and wasn't afraid to do anything. He was a lot of fun to be around.

RICHARD FALLON

Service Number: 9936

18th December 1926 - 3rd April 1970

Richard Fallon was from Moneen, Kilrooskey, County Roscommon and was married with 5 children. He joined the Garda Síochána in 1947, he was the first member of the force to receive the Scott Medal posthumously.

He was also the first member to be murdered during the 'Troubles'. In April 1970 Richard was murdered while on duty in Dublin City centre by a paramilitary gang robbing a bank. Immediately after his death allegations, including those made in the Irish Parliament (the Dáil), suggested that elements of the Fianna Fáil government of the day knew about or were involved in collusion with the gang, Saor Éire, supposedly responsible for the murder.

Still the government refuses to launch an inquiry. In the meantime Deirdre Fallon (Richard's wife) died aged 56 and two of her children Joe and Damien both died prematurely in their early forties leaving their devastated children behind for another generation to deal with the aftermath.

Garda Inspector SAMUEL DONEGAN

20th November 1911 - 8th June 1972

Inspector Donegan, was a native of Ballintampen, Ballymacormack, Co. Longford.

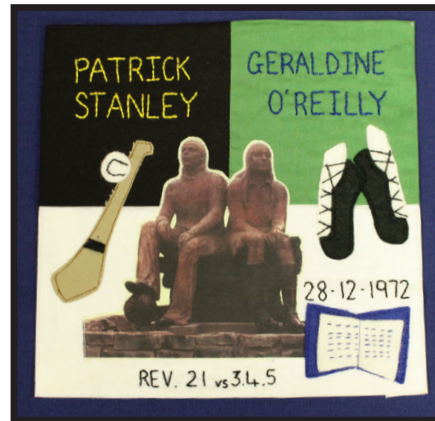

He was killed by a PIRA bomb left by the roadside, at either Legakelly or Drumboghanagh, near Newtownbutler in County Fermanagh. Garda Donegan had crossed over the northern side of the border moments before his death.

Garda Donegan was promoted to Inspector in the mid-1960s and transferred to the Cavan Border region.

The official citation on a Garda Roll of Honour recalls the tragedy which occurred as some of his six children prepared to sit school exams:

“On 8th June, 1972, Inspector Donegan was one of a party of Garda and Army personnel conducting searches on the Cavan/Fermanagh border when he was killed by a booby-trap bomb on a country lane at Drumboghanagh, Newtownbutler, Co. Fermanagh.”

BELTURBET BOMB

Two young people, Geraldine O'Reilly, (aged 15 years) Staghall, Belturbet and Patrick Stanley, from Clara, Co. Offaly, (aged 16 years) were murdered by a loyalist car bomb in Belturbet on 28th December 1972.

A specially sculptured monument/memorial was erected in early 2007 on the site of the bomb, dedicated to these two victims.

Reports at the time describe damage to property caused by the 100lb-bomb, planted in a Red 1969 Ford Escort, to be estimated at £200,000. Twenty-three houses in Butler Street were damaged by the explosion, 13 houses in The Diamond and 18 houses in Bridge Street, with others less seriously damaged on Holborn Hill, The Lawn and at Banker's Lane.

Fourteen cars were also damaged, while pieces of the bomb car were recovered from a 100-yard radius of the blast site.

Patrick Stanley, a helper on a bottle gas container lorry, had been making a phone call in a nearby kiosk when the bomb went off. Geraldine O'Reilly, who was on her Christmas holidays from school, was across the road in Slowey's chip shop waiting to be served when the bomb exploded, where she suffered head injuries from flying shrapnel.

Geraldine's brother, Anthony, had been waiting for her outside in the car when the bomb went off.

No organisation ever claimed the bomb and no-one has ever been convicted of the crime.

Civilian

GERALDINE O'REILLY

3rd April 1957 - 28th December 1972

Geraldine O'Reilly was a student at St. Bricin's Vocational school, Belturbet, County Cavan, she lived at Staghall, Belturbet.

She was murdered at aged 15 years in a planted car bomb explosion when standing in a local chip shop on 28th December 1972. Her brother Anthony was with her and sustained life changing injuries.

The symbol of a book was chosen as Geraldine's goal in life was to become a teacher, her excellent Inter Cert results showed that she was on the well to achieving this.

The dancing pumps represent her keen interest in Irish dancing; she attended the local Irish dance classes.

Geraldine was well liked among her peers and she was the youngest of a family of eight.

Civilian

PATRICK STANLEY

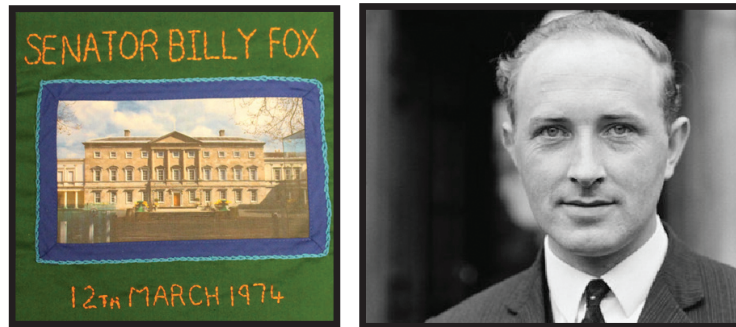

31st March 1956 - 28th December 1972

Patrick Stanley was a helper on a lorry, he was from Clara, County Offaly and was making a phone call to his parents from the public phone box (which was outside the Post Office in Belturbet) when the bomb went off. He was aged 16 years.

Patrick was a member of his local GAA club in Clara and had a keen interest in Gaelic football. He also enjoyed a game of Hurley which is symbolised on the Memorial Quilt by the crossed Hurley sticks.

Patrick was the eldest of a family of 10.

SENATOR BILLY FOX

3rd January 1939 - 12th March 1974

Billy Fox was an Irish politician and a member of Dáil Éireann from 1969 to 1973, and of Seanad Éireann from 1973 until he was murdered on 12th March 1974. He was shot dead by gunmen who were allegedly carrying out a raid on his girlfriend's farmhouse. Five members of the Provisional IRA were convicted of involvement in his murder.

On the night of Monday 12th March 1974, about a dozen gunmen arrived at the home of Senator Fox's girlfriend, Marjorie Coulson. She lived there with her parents and brother, and Senator Fox regularly visited on Monday evening. The farmhouse was in the rural townland of Tircooney in County Monaghan, near the border with Northern Ireland. The gunmen searched the farmhouse and demanded the occupants hand over weapons. As this was taking place, Senator Fox drove down the laneway and was stopped by some of the gunmen who were outside. He ran, but was shot and killed by a single gunshot wound through the upper torso. The gunmen then ordered everyone out of the house, set it on fire, and escaped.

The Seanad adjourned for a week as a mark of respect. About 500 people attended his funeral at Aughnamullen, including the Taoiseach and the Irish president, Erskine Childers. Fox was the first member of the Oireachtas to be killed since Minister for Justice Kevin O'Higgins by the anti-Treaty Irish Republican Army in 1927.

One of those convicted for Fox's killing, Sean Kinsella, later escaped from Portlaoise Prison and was later convicted of arms offences and attempted murder in England. He was released by the Irish government under the Belfast Agreement.

DUBLIN & MONAGHAN BOMBINGS

The Dublin and Monaghan bombings of 17th May 1974 were a series of co-ordinated bombings in Dublin and Monaghan, Ireland. Three bombs exploded in Dublin during rush hour and a fourth exploded in Monaghan almost ninety minutes later. They killed 33 civilians (27 in Dublin and 7 in Monaghan) and a full-term unborn child, and injured almost 300. The bombings were the deadliest terrorist attack in the Republic's history. Most of the victims were young women, although the ages of the dead ranged from five months to 80 years.

The Ulster Volunteer Force (UVF), claimed responsibility for the bombings in 1993. The bombings happened during the Ulster Workers' Council strike.

No-one has ever been charged with the bombings. A campaign by the victims' families led to an Irish government inquiry under Justice Henry Barron. His 2003 report criticised the Garda Síochána's investigation and said the investigators stopped their work prematurely. It also criticised the Fine Gael/Labour government of the time for its inaction and lack of interest in the bombings.

The victims' families continue to campaign for the British government to release documents they believe could help unravel the truth.

EDWARD O'NEILL

17th May 1974

Edward O'Neill was one of those murdered when three bombs exploded in Dublin's city centre on 17 May 1974.

Forty five years on, no one has ever been held accountable for his death, and the deaths of thirty-two others murdered in Dublin and Monaghan on that fateful day.

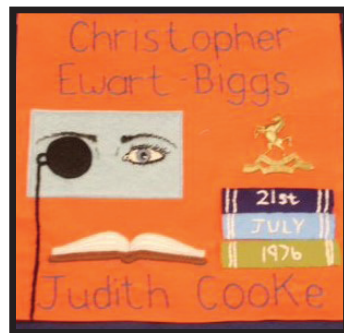

Edward's wife also lost a child, a baby who was full-term was tragically still-born.

Edward Snr, a self-employed painter and decorators and father of eight had gone into Dublin City Centre with his two young sons to have their hair cut. Edward Jnr was severely injured in the bomb attack; those injuries (both physical and psychological) are with him to this day. His brother escaped serious physical injury but remains psychologically impacted by the events of that day.

Journalist Barry J Whyte worked with the O'Neill family in producing a book titled, "Two Little Boys" which provides a very personal depiction of the family's search for the truth.

In recent months Edward when commenting on the proposed pension for seriously injured victims stated; that he would rather be in pain for the rest of his life than to receive a Pension which would also be paid to perpetrators.

Civilian CHRISTOPHER EWART -BIGGS and Civilian JUDITH COOKE

21st July 1976

The 55-year-old British ambassador to the Republic of Ireland was murdered via a Provisional IRA landmine in Sandyford, Dublin, on July 21, 1976.

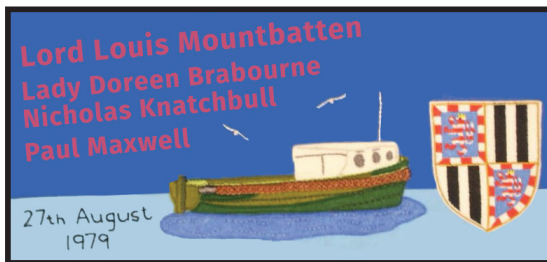

His fellow passenger, civil servant Judith Cooke (26) was also murdered. His driver Brian O'Driscoll and a third passenger Brian Cubbon (57), a high-ranking civil servant in the Northern Ireland Office, were injured but survived the attack.

To mark the 40th Anniversary since the murders, Mr Ewart-Biggs' daughter Kate Ewart-Biggs planted a tree at Glencairn House in Dublin, the British ambassador's residence in the Republic.

Mr O'Driscoll, the British Ambassador to the Republic, Dominick Chilcott, and the Republic's Foreign Affairs minister Charlie Flanagan all attended the ceremony.

Mr Chilcott said Mr Ewart-Biggs' family had worked hard to build bridges between the Republic and the United Kingdom. In 1977, the family established the Ewart-Biggs Memorial prize, awarded to published, performed or broadcast work that promotes peace and reconciliation.

LORD MOUNTBATTEN & OTHERS

27th August 1979

Admiral of the Fleet Louis Francis Albert Victor Nicholas Mountbatten, 1st Earl Mountbatten of Burma (born Prince Louis of Battenberg; 25 June 1900 - 27 August 1979), was a British Royal Navy officer and statesman, an uncle of Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, and second cousin once removed of Queen Elizabeth II.

During the Second World War, he was Supreme Allied Commander, South East Asia Command (1943-1946). He was the last Viceroy of India (1947) and the first Governor-General of independent India (1947-1948).

Mountbatten was married on 18th July 1922 to Edwina Cynthia Annette Ashley, daughter of Wilfred William Ashley, later 1st Baron Mount Temple, himself a grandson of the 7th Earl of Shaftesbury.

Mountbatten usually holidayed at his summer home, Classiebawn Castle, in Mullaghmore, a small seaside village in County Sligo. The village is only 12 miles (19 km) from the border with Northern Ireland and near an area known to be used as a cross-border refuge by IRA members. In 1978, the IRA had allegedly attempted to shoot Mountbatten as he was aboard his boat, but poor weather had prevented the sniper taking his shot. On 27th August 1979, Mountbatten went lobster-potting and tuna fishing in his 30-foot (9.1 m) wooden boat, Shadow V, which had been moored in the harbour at Mullaghmore, County Sligo.

Provisional IRA member Thomas McMahon had slipped onto the unguarded boat that night and attached a radio-controlled bomb weighing 50 pounds. When Mountbatten was aboard, just a few hundred yards from the shore, the bomb was detonated. The boat was destroyed by the force of the blast, and Mountbatten's legs were almost blown off. Mountbatten, then aged 79, was pulled alive from the water by nearby fishermen, but died from his injuries before being brought to shore.

Also aboard the boat were his elder daughter Patricia (Lady Brabourne), her husband John (Lord Brabourne), their twin sons Nicholas and Timothy Knatchbull, John's mother Doreen, (dowager) Lady Brabourne, and Paul Maxwell, a young crew member from County Fermanagh. Nicholas (aged 14) and Paul (aged 15) were murdered outright by the blast and the others were seriously injured. Doreen, Lady Brabourne (aged 83) died from her injuries the following day.

Six weeks later following the attack, the then Sinn Féin vice-president Gerry Adams crassly justified Lord Mountbatten's murder. In May 2015, during a meeting with Prince Charles, Adams did not apologise. He later said in an interview, "I stand over what I said then. I'm not one of those people that engages in revisionism. Thankfully the war is over".

Many will view these words as irony in the extreme from an individual whose life, inclusive of actions and words have been a revisionist continuum.

In 2016 an appeal for finance to commission a short film called 'Boat Boy' describing the life of Paul Maxwell was made by writer Joe Madden. The Film has been developed and went live this year (2019). The Film explains how the Portora Royal pupil had taken a summer job as a crew member in Mountbatten's boat Shadow V and was saving his pay to buy a bicycle.

SEFF challenged Mr Madden at the time upon the language used in attempting to secure backers for the Project, he described the brutal murders of the four people concerned as "an act of War".

We responded; "What happened in Mullaghmore, Sligo was an act of terrorism, an act of cold and brutal murder, an act of cowardice - it was not an act of war," he said. If the narrative is not accurate to the reality of events then the film's potential for good is thwarted. If it was a war then senior members of the republican movement, who now wear suits, and others who don't belong to that elite, plus many others would be up in The Hague for serious war crimes."

On the day of the bombing, the Provisional IRA also ambushed and murdered eighteen Regular Army soldiers in Northern Ireland, sixteen of them from the Parachute Regiment, in what became known as the Warrenpoint ambush, a civilian also died in the attack. It was the deadliest attack on the Army during the Troubles.

Garda Officer HENRY GERARD BYRNE

Service Number: 18300H

24th March 1951 - 7th July 1980

Henry was married with 3 children, Paul (5), Henry (4) and Aisling (who was born 4 months after his murder). He joined the Garda and was stationed in various locations Mullingar, Carlow and Castlereagh.

Garda Byrne was murdered along with Garda John Morley on 7th July 1980 after intercepting an armed robbery gang who raided the Bank of Ireland, Ballaghaderreen, Co Roscommon.

Sadly there were many other members of the Garda who met a similar fate at the hands of those who were stealing from what they claimed were “their own people” so that they might have the financial resources to further their campaign of terrorism.

Henry’s hobbies included cards, he also played Gaelic football at local level for Kiltimagh GAA, these interests are represented on his patch within the memorial quilt.

Henry’s senseless death devastated the Byrne family.

Garda Detective JOHN MORLEY

Service Number: 15543H

6th October 1942 - 7th July 1980

John Morley was 37 years old and married with three children, he had an interest in all types of sports but in particular Gaelic football. He played Senior Intercounty Gaelic football for Mayo for 13 seasons, winning Connacht Senior Championship medals in 1967 (as Captain) and 1969 and a National Football League title in 1970. He also played Rugby and Badminton.

John joined the Garda and was stationed at Castlerea, Co. Roscommon. On 7th July 1980 John and three colleagues were responding to an armed robbery at the Bank of Ireland branch in nearby Ballaghaderreen, Co. Roscommon when their patrol car intercepted the bank raiders at Shannon's Cross, Loughglynn, Co. Roscommon.

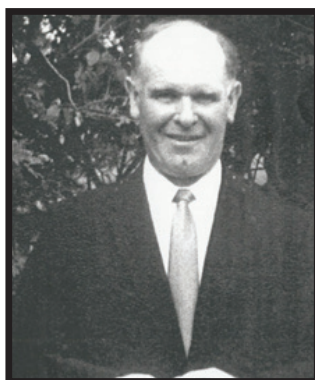

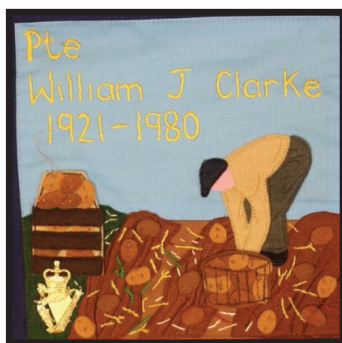

Following a collision between the patrol car and the getaway car and during a pursuit of the armed gang on foot, John was shot and fatally wounded. His colleague Garda Byrne was murdered following the initial collision when the gang opened fire on the patrol car. His two other colleagues survived the shoot-out.

A Gaelic football was chosen to go on John's patch to signify his lifelong involvement and love of GAA.

John is fondly and lovingly remembered by his family, colleagues and friends alike.

Private

WILLIAM JOHN CLARKE

Service Number: 24216983 (Ulster Defence Regiment)

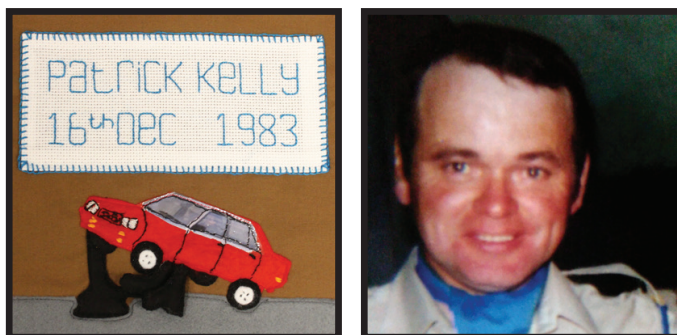

12th June 1921 - 3rd August 1980

William John Clarke was born on 12th June 1921, the second child and oldest boy in a family of eight, and part of a farming family who lived near the village of Killen, Castlederg. Like most families in the 1920s and 30s, money was in short supply but his childhood was happy and carefree surrounded by his brothers and sisters. The Clarke cottage was famous as a gathering point for the musicians of the area and the regular ceili evenings brought most of the people from the surrounding areas to the cottage. Probably because of this childhood experience he retained a lifelong passion for music and dance.

He married Elizabeth Sproule when he was 19 years old and started his own family. Bill found work in the Nestle factory in Victoria Bridge and worked there until it closed in 1970. By then Bill and Lily had 4 children, Stanley, Olive, Norman and Derek. The family moved to live in the town of Castlederg and Bill joined the Ulster Defence Regiment - but all the while Bill supplemented the growing family's needs by planting potatoes and rearing livestock in the small holding he had at his former home in Killen. Bill not only produced enough food for his own family but was generous with the surplus he grew, giving it to friends and extended family.

On Sunday, 3rd August 1980, Bill set out to deliver potatoes to a friend who lived in Pettigo - a town on the border between the North and South of Ireland. Although Bill was well aware of the guerilla tactics the IRA employed in using the border as an escape route after an attack in Northern Ireland, he had no hesitation in travelling along that route since he considered the people who lived there to be his friends and neighbours of many years and that he had nothing to fear from them. Tragically, Bill's faith and trust was misplaced and on his way to Pettigo, in the townland of Gortinessy, his car was ambushed and 3 IRA gunmen riddled the car with high velocity bullets. It is almost certain that Bill died instantly since the State Pathologist estimated that Bill had been struck by at least 22 bullets.

Private PATRICK (PADDY) KELLY

Service Number: 823887

13 May 1947 - 16 December 1983

Known by his family, comrades and friends as “Paddy”, he was married with four sons. He joined the Irish Defence Forces in 1968 as an Army Private. He served on four overseas United Nations peacekeeping missions, three in Lebanon and one in Cyprus.

He was murdered by Provisional IRA terrorists during the search and rescue of kidnapped businessman Don Tidey in Derrada Wood, Ballinamore, Co Leitrim. He was thirty-six years old.

A native of Ballinamuck, Co Longford, he is remembered as a great family man with a wonderful sense of humour. His interests included repairing cars and listening to country and western music.

On 16 July 2012, he was posthumously awarded the Military Star medal by the Minister for Justice. According to Bishop Colm O'Reilly, “He died as he lived, working for peace”.

Paddy always had a love for repairing cars, he is often remembered by his family with his head under a bonnet or his feet dangling out from under a car.

Every Summer Paddy enjoyed going to the bog to cut turf, he worked hard to get the turf clamped, dried and brought home for the fire. He would round up help from his family, neighbours and friends. He was also a big Elvis Presley fan.

Recruit Garda GARY SHEEHAN

Service Number: 23589L

24th September 1960 - 16th December 1983

A native of Carrickmacross, in County Monaghan, Gary Sheehan had worked as a technician before joining the Garda Síochána in September 1983. Both his father and grandfather had also been police officers. He was also a member of the Carrick Emmets Gaelic Football team.

Gary was a probation police officer three months into his service and in training at the Garda College at Templemore when he was deployed in a joint police and Irish Defence Forces search for Mr. Don Tidey, the Director of a supermarket chain, who had been kidnapped in the southern outskirts of Dublin for ransom by the Provisional IRA to raise finance for its paramilitary activities.

On the afternoon of 16th December 1983, Gary and Private Patrick (Paddy) Kelly (a soldier in the Irish Army) were part of a joint forces team searching with dogs through Drumcromin Wood, at Derrada, near Ballinamore, when they found the Provisional IRA kidnap gang's hideout location, and were shot dead (Gary was hit in the head). Mr. Tidey was subsequently found nearby and rescued, the Provisional IRA gang fleeing the scene, managing to escape, shooting and wounding another Garda officer in the process.

Gary's patch has some Carrickmacross lace to represent where he was born and reared, it also has the Carrick Emmets Gaelic football crest to demonstrate his passion and love of the sport.

Garda Detective

FRANK HAND

Service Number: 20594L

29th August 1957 - 10th August 1984

Frank Hand was born on 29th August 1957, he came from Ardmullen, Curraghboy, Athlone, Co. Roscommon. He joined An Garda Síochána on 20th July 1977 and was stationed at the Central Detective Unit, Harcourt Square, Dublin.

Detective Hand was married with one daughter, his main interests were farming and nature.

On the morning of 10th August 1984, Detective Garda Hand and a colleague were on duty in an unmarked patrol car acting as armed escort to a post office mail van. As both vehicles pulled up outside Drumree Post Office, County Meath to make the delivery, they were confronted by an armed unit of the Provisional IRA. There was an exchange of gun fire between the raiders and the Garda, both men were injured however Detective Hand's injuries proved fatal.

Detective Hand was posthumously awarded the Scott Gold Medal on 4th December 1986 in acknowledgement of his courage and devotion in serving his Country and the community.

Chief Prison Officer BRIAN STACK

Service Number: 24174231

18th October 1935 - 29th September 1984

Brian Stack was born in Portlaoise in October 1935 and he joined the Prison Service in August 1959. He reached the heights of Chief Prison Officer in Portlaoise Prison. On the night of 25th March 1983 he was shot from behind by a gunman as he left the National Boxing Stadium in Dublin. Brian did not die that fateful night but remained in a coma for many months. When he came out of the coma he was left brain damaged and paralysed from the neck down. He survived until 29th September 1984, when he finally died, aged 48, from his injuries.

As a young man Brian played many sports and later in his life he became well known for his role as an inter-county GAA referee and International Boxing judge and referee. He was involved in many other organisations and charities in a voluntary capacity. Brian married a local woman Sheila Donoghue in 1967 and he had three sons: Austin (who followed him into the Prison Service), Kieran and Oliver. While he was very dedicated to his work he was also very much a family man. In the weeks prior to the shooting Brian had two of the proudest moments of his life, one was seeing his son Oliver win a Leinster Boxing Title and the other was witnessing his beloved "Town" win the All-Ireland Club Gaelic Football Title.

Garda Sergeant PATRICK JOSEPH MORRISSEY

Service Number: 14545K

7th March 1936 – 27th June 1985

Patrick Morrissey was born on 7th March, 1936, he originally came from Belturbet, Co. Cavan. He joined An Garda Síochána on 14th December 1960 but prior to that served in the National Army from 1953 to 1960. After almost 14 years' service Patrick was promoted to Sergeant on 24th October 1974. Sergeant Morrissey served in various locations including Waterford, Drogheda, Dublin, Omeath and Collon, County Louth.

Patrick was an experienced life-saver, his allocation to Headquarters saw him play a major role in the development of the Garda Sub-Aqua Unit. He was married with four children. Sergeant Morrissey was posthumously awarded the Scott Gold Medal on 4th December 1986.

On 27th June 1985, Gardai Peter Long and Brendan Flynn were on mobile patrol at Ardee, Co. Louth. As they approached the town's Labour Exchange they came upon a robbery in progress. Two armed men had ambushed the manager and stolen £25,000 in cash. When the raiders saw the patrol car they fled the scene in the manager's car, discharging their firearms at the two Gardai. Following in pursuit, the patrol car picked up Sergeant Morrissey along the way. The chase ended abruptly at Rathbrist Cross, when the raiders, now on a motor-cycle, crashed into an approaching car, injuring the occupants of the car. Gardai Flynn and Long stayed with the injured persons while Sergeant Morrissey, alone and on foot, pursued the raiders. As he caught up with them a shot was fired and he fell to the ground grievously wounded. One of the gunmen stood over him and at point blank range shot the Sergeant dead.

The Scott Medal was posthumously awarded to Sergeant Patrick Morrissey on 4th December 1986. In 2013 he was also awarded the Freedom of Drogheda by Drogheda Borough Council, it was the first such award of its kind.

As mentioned Patrick was one of the founder members of the Garda Sub Aqua Unit but he also helped to set up the Garda Male Voice Choir – this is why these two images are depicted on his patch within the Memorial Quilt.

Civilian

JOHN McCABE

15th February 1960 - 11th February 1986

John had been married for just 6 months when he was murdered by Provisional IRA terrorists at the Talk of the Town bar in Maguiresbridge, County Fermanagh on 11th February 1986.

John had just built a beautiful new home that was almost ready to move into but he never got the opportunity to sleep a night there.

He had worked for an English owned Telecommunications Company for 5 years but that Company ceased operations in Ireland in 1985 & he then went to work temporarily as a Barman in Maguiresbridge, County Fermanagh. He was employed there for less than 5 months when his life was taken in this Bar alongside a young Police Constable Derek Breen.

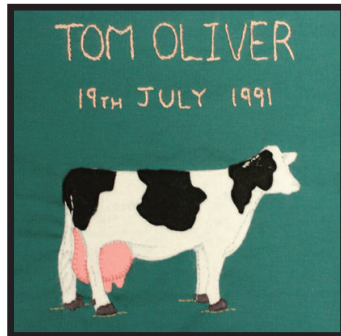

John loved to play Gaelic Football as a teenager for his local team. He also liked to travel abroad. As a 15 year old boy he lived in Chicago for 6 months with family and attended High School there.

John had a deep interest in pool & snooker and was considered very talented, he was also a very smart poker player and he played the tin whistle. Musically he was a big fan of Bob Seeger, Chris de Burgh, Cat Stevens & many other Artists.

John had many, many friends in his local community & will be missed forever by his dear mother and family.

Tá sé I measc na n-aingeal (He's with the Angels)

Civilian THOMAS (TOM) OLIVER

14th March 1948 – 19th July 1991

Thomas Oliver, commonly known as Tom was a dairy farmer. He was married to Bridie and together they had 7 children, 6 girls and 1 boy. His son described him as a very obliging man who was well thought of within the local community in Riverstown, County Louth where he was from.

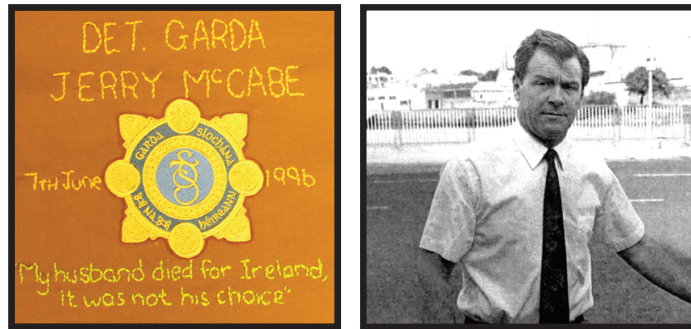

Aside from farming Tom followed the local GAA and would often attend different matches. He and his wife were also keen Country Music fans and would regularly go to dances. He also loved children and was said to have a very warm personality.

Tom was 37 years old when he was murdered. On 18th July 1991 he was abducted by armed members of the IRA and his body was found the next day near Belleeks, County Armagh. His murder was condemned by politicians, religious and civic leaders across the Community.

Tom Oliver's murder began a wave of outrage against the IRA culminating in a Peace rally attended by 4000 people in Cooley, County Louth.

In the aftermath of the murder Cardinal Cathal Daly called for a 'Peace Process'.

Detective Garda JERRY McCABE

Garda Number: 15860G

22nd November 1943 - 7th June 1996

Jerry was born in Ballybunion, Co. Kerry. He joined the Garda Siochana on 9th September 1964, he was promoted to Special Branch Detective on 21st November 1972 and his best friend Ben O'Sullivan was promoted on the same day. Jerry's interests outside the Garda Siochana were cars and golf. Jerry McCabe married Ann Cuniffe on 21st September 1967, Ann's father Bill was also a member of An Garda Siochana. Jerry and Ann had five children, two of which are currently members of An Garda Siochana.

On the morning of 7th June 1996 Detective Jerry McCabe and Detective Ben O'Sullivan were escorting a Post Office van on its cash delivery at Adare, County Limerick. Five armed masked men were involved in the ram raid of the vehicle being travelled in by Det McCabe and Det O'Sullivan jumped out and raked the policemen's car with high-velocity weapons, killing Det. McCabe and severely wounding Det. O'Sullivan. The criminals who caused Jerry McCabe's death were charged with capital murder but the State was obliged to accept a plea of manslaughter due to intimidation of important witnesses during the course of the trial. Four men accused of capital murder were sentenced to various prison terms, most of which were served at Castlerea Prison. Det. Jerry McCabe was posthumously awarded the Scott Gold Medal.
